The Wright Stuff

A Word from Bob Wright

In Chapter Eleven of my book, “Killing Cancer – Not People,” I write about what I call “Synthetic Visualization,” stating that I surmise that, what you believe to be true, can heal you or kill you. Some might disagree with that, but I will hold fast to the idea that our thoughts and beliefs can have physiological repercussions – both good and bad.

This, in my opinion, is played out day after day, month after month, and year after year as cancer patients are given the “death sentence” by their doctors. When one hears “only 90 days to live – get your affairs in order,” many (if not most) proceed to obey their doctor’s orders and proceed to die. And the sheer terror and significance of that moment can produce that physical reaction that dooms the patient for good. In an instant we perceive that this is the end and there is nothing we can do about it.

Unless we decide to fight. You see, I truly believe that what we can visualize or conceive in our lives has a great opportunity to become true. We have known of many who have knuckled down and stated that there was no way the cancer was going to beat them. Then, they went about the process of putting together a plan that could help them win. And for so many – win they did. They were optimistic, had a great attitude, and really thought they could beat the Big C. You have probably heard that “attitude is everything.” Well, maybe not everything, but probably just about.

Here is a quote from Bob Davis, who overcame cancer twice and has worked with and interviewed many cancer patients regarding how attitude affects cancer treatments:

“I have dealt with many people who had cancer. Those who overcame had optimistic and aggressive attitudes. Those who did not survive were weakly motivated and vacillated regarding what (and how) they would do to fight the cancer. I know that this generalization is unkind and even cruel to those who were weak and fought the best they could to the end. I am not speaking of them. The ones that I reference are those who were reasonably strong who ‘decided’ that the fight was not worth the effort, or who had no confidence in an alternative program. I watched them die without trying. We have the popular notion that people are entitled to their opinion. If this is true, then we must consider that we are also obligated to receive the consequences of our actions, including those brought about by our attitude.”

I understand that some make take issue with Bob’s take on this. But, it does have merit. I have complete understanding, however, of why he said what he did. I have consulted with thousands of cancer patients – telling them exactly what I would do if I was in their situation (no, I did not treat them). It is often difficult to comprehend the reasons that people will not fight for their own lives. And as I said in Chapter Eleven, “This precious gift of breath (the only thing we really have that we can call our own from birth to death) that has been given to us seems far too valuable to let go of without a battle. I would like to think that I could not forfeit my life that easily, that I would fully engage the enemy till the end. I get the realization, however, that the true answer for many others is not that straightforward.

“For probably a multitude of reasons, apparent or not, many cancer sufferers have simply given up, having perceived the battle to be lost. They may have been through the best treatments that conventional medicine has to offer with no progress, endured serious side effects, and have lived with a very poor quality of life for months or years. They are tired, very sick and, simply, have no will to continue. Add to that the fact that they are depressed, pessimistic, emotionally sterilized, and ‘just want it to be over.’ There is no more desire, no more energy, no remaining will for any additional treatments, conventional or alternative. After all, if America’s ‘gold standard’ of therapies have failed them, they cannot ‘visualize’ that anything else could possibly work. And, ‘where there is no vision, the people perish.’ Unfortunately, I’ve witnessed it many times. They have ‘seen’ their death – and, suddenly, appear to be okay with it.

“Many have been so heavily ‘treated’ that they would not have survived any additional intervention, regardless of what it was. There are others, though, still upright and mobile, who might benefit from non-allopathic measures that may, at a minimum, relieve pain and give them a better quality of life for whatever time is left. Maybe, just maybe, they could still be healed. In fact, it happens everyday for many who somehow can generate the will to keep going – to keep trying – to live.”

Yet today I sit here writing this article and understand that, basically, nothing has changed since I first penned Chapter 11. I struggle to understand (still) why we won’t seek truth wherever we can find it. And, as most of you know by now, we simply do not find it (regarding cancer and all chronic illness) in conventional medicine.

All this to tell all of you – we really do know what we are doing. You will find the protocols, therapies, and supplements we recommend steeped in science, empirical evidence, and truth. This despite the efforts of big medicine to steer you away from what we forward suggesting that there is no evidence at all of its efficacy. A bald-faced lie. You see, we are getting in their pocketbooks and they don’t like it at all.

Friends, we have made major discoveries in the past dozen years that refute the tenants of Western Medicine and prove themselves every day in the bodies of those who have healed from cancer – and are healing right now.

We have just received news of longer term studies on the X39 Stem Cell Patches. The testimonials are incredible, the clinical studies prove the “why” of these amazing results. If you have not tried these technologically-proven devices, consider doing it now. Everyone should be wearing these. Everyone. And although many have received immediate results, I caution people to give them time. If you are not willing to have a trial of at least 90 days – then don’t bother. You may be cheating yourself if you give up early.

And think about that last statement. We spend 40, 50, 60 years or more getting our bodies into the shape they are in. Then, we want to be better, well, and fixed in a week. You and I both know it doesn’t work that way. These patches do get your dormant stem cells working again – migrating again. They produce more and more of the GHK-Cu peptide that, all by itself – stem cells aside, does 50-100 different beneficial physiological functions within you. This is a “can’t miss” deal, folks. But you must give it time. Think about it. Then email Shelly Osie at shelly@americanaci.org or dsoslie@yahoo.com for more information, details, testimonials, videos, etc. Shelly will take care of you.

Wishing all of our readers health and healing – and blessings – in 2020.

Blessings, Bob

Hello everyone - I am SO excited to have the opportunity to elaborate a little more about an amazing product that Bob has been telling you all about over the last few months.

Let me start with the inventor of the product, David Schmidt…I believe (and so do many others) that he is a genius! I also believe he, and his products, will change the face of health care, as we know it today. His company is a network marketing company and, unfortunately, some people let that scare them away so let me address that right out of the gate.

I use to have many reservations about network marketing companies myself, just from stories I heard from others. My first personal encounter was a friend telling me about a product that I just HAD to know about. To begin with, I was not interested at all but I did my due diligence and ended up very impressed with the product and wanted to buy it. Then I realized it was only available from a network marketing company and I told him I was no longer interested.

My friend handled it very well. He asked me to forget about how the company markets and distributes the product and just look at the product itself. Did I feel it was a high quality product? I said yes. Was it something I felt my family could benefit from? I said yes. He then asked me if I could buy the same quality product anywhere else and I said no. He went on to ask me one more question….was I really willing to deprive my family of a product, that I truly felt would be good for them, just because I didn’t like the company’s marketing plan or the way they choose to distribute their product? I realized how close-minded I was being, bought the product and never regretted it! Matter of fact, we still use it today.

Now, let’s move on to the meat and potatoes of it all. Considering my position with the AACI/IWARC, I am introduced to a lot of products, and believe me, there are some amazing ones out there but I have not been this excited or impressed with a product since I was first introduced to restructured water (and you all know how we feel about that!).

Here’s what I have found in my research…..

A big part of our aging process is the loss of stem cell activity. In fact, by the time we are 35 years old, our body’s stem cell activity has already decreased by about 50% and by the time we are 60-65 we have lost around 90%! Decreased stem cell activity means faster aging and slower healing.

Therefore….Increased stem cell activity means slower aging and faster healing. Knowing that sure made me want to increase my stem cell activity! How about you?

I’m sure most of us have been hearing all the buzz around stem cell therapies these days, some good - some not so good. There are shots available but they are expensive, localized and, come with some controversy on where the stem cells were harvested. That’s a story for another day.

Well, here’s where the genius steps in…..David Schmidt, Founder and CEO of LifeWave, figured out a way that we could activate our stem cells and reset them to a younger healthier state. He invented a patented phototherapy designed to elevate a peptide known to enhance stem cell activity. This is healing in a completely non-invasive, safe and cost-effective way!

As I tried to understand this, it reminded me of how exposing our skin to sunlight allows our body to make vitamin D and then it made sense to me.

LifeWave’s X39, is a little round patch, worn 12 hours a day. Put a patch on in the morning and take it off 12 hours later - that’s it! How simple is that?!

It is so interesting to me that we can increase our own stem cell activity without adding anything to our body - that is amazing! This patch has been demonstrated to provide an abundance of health benefits. It’s clinically proven to provide the body with a level of health and vitality that we have not experienced since we were in our youth! And, it is backed by multiple clinical studies and 20 years of development. The results of 2 of the newest studies will be announced next week and I can’t wait to hear all about them. One was on the brain.

I know some will feel this all sounds too good to be true, while others will read this and think they should be totally healed and have the body of a 20 year old within a month of using the patch. Please understand, even though we have seen some things that could be described as nothing short of a miracle, this is NOT a get fixed quick product. It took our body years to get into the shape it’s in and it just may take some time to get it all resolved. Be patient with it.

Some people do notice some type of improvement within the first day while others may take 6 months, or more, to notice anything. Sometimes changes happen so slowly and subtly, that we don’t even realize the changes have happened. Think of the last time you had a headache, do you remember the exact time it went away? Or did you just realize it was gone and don’t know when it happened?

Those of you that know me, know I love analogies so here’s one I use to explain why some people do not notice anything for quite some time (please know, it doesn’t mean good things aren’t happening!).

Dr Nicholas, who I have met through LifeWave, explained it to me this way…. He said, think of all of the “issues” we have, known or not, as fires inside our body. Some are little and some are quite big. Some we know about and some we do not. Think of putting a patch on as putting a bunch of firemen on duty. They are young and strong and ready to burst forth to put out all your fires but they can’t do them all at once. They are going to assess the situation and go to work on the most threatening fires first. They may be issues we do not even know we have. Think of a person with cancer….often times it has been growing in them for years, if not decades, before they even have a clue they have it. If we happen to have a knee pain, that does not go away after wearing the patches for 30 days, does that mean the patches do not work? Absolutely not! It just means you had some other fires that were more important for the firemen to be working on than your knee pain. Be patient, let the firemen do their job.

LifeWave already has several clinical studies on the X39 patch now, with expectations of having a total of roughly 15 completed by the end of 2020.
Here are a couple of examples of benefits participants received during some of the testing.....

Dr. Melinda Connors said that what normally took 1 to 2 years to rebuild the gut lining any other way, took only 7 days with the X39! She also said there were 17 amino acid changes!

Another study showed that after just 6 weeks of wearing the X39 patch, the participants’ arterial age regressed! It made their arteries younger - WOW! That’s an amazing result! Is that something someone would notice? No. Is it a good thing? YES! Be patient.

I heard David in an interview the other night say that in all the studies they have done on the X39 patch, the 6 month point is where they really start to see some changes.

I’m hope you are realizing that good things can be happening inside the body that we may not even be aware of. If you do choose to try the X39 patch, I hope you see the importance of committing to 6 months to a year and then see how you feel and where your health is. Give your body time to reset to that younger healthier you!

If you decide to go the traditional route of chemotherapy and/or radiation on your healing journey with Breast Cancer, it is paramount that you know how to counter both the short and the long term side effects that are inevitably a part of these conventional treatments. In this two-part series, I will take a look at some of the most common ones. Most importantly, I will outline what evidence-based research has to say about the very best in natural modalities and substances that can help.

Boosting Immunity After Chemotherapy
You may have heard the statistics when it comes to mortality and chemotherapy. If you haven’t, they aren’t good. According to a study conducted by the Northern Sydney Cancer Centre, “The overall contribution of curative and adjuvant cytotoxic chemotherapy to 5-year survival in adults was estimated to be 2.3% in Australia and 2.1% in the USA.”

A big reason why those who undergo chemotherapy treatment have low survival rates concerns what chemotherapy does to the immune system overall.
Chemotherapy is strong drug therapy that is designed to work quickly to destroy fast-growing tumor cells. In turn, it winds up affecting many kinds of healthy cells, including those in your immune system.

Here are just a few modalities that can help boost immunity for both short and long term health:

Vitamin C
Vitamin C is vital for healthy cellular growth. C can also help with sleep, nausea and fatigue. In addition to oral supplements, you can also utilize vitamin C IV therapy with the guidance of a trained professional.

Medicinal Mushrooms
Medicinal mushrooms have the ability to boost white blood cell counts. In addition, Agaricus blazei Murill (or ABM extract) has been linked to improved natural killer (NK) cell activity.

Adaptogens
Adaptogenic herbs have the special role of enhancing the effectiveness of other healing herbs. Two of the most potent are astralagus and mistletoe.

CoQ10
Coenzyme Q10 is a powerful antioxidant that can help to lower inflammation, allowing your body’s healing mechanisms to kick in again. In addition, a study at the University of California, Los Angeles found CoQ10 to be protective against anthracycline-induced damage to the cardiovascular system.

Hyperthermia
Raising body temp can also raise immune system function. In fact, raising body temperature between 104 – 111 degrees F, such as when you are in an infrared sauna or hot bath, can actually destroy cancer cells.

Sulforaphane
Sulforaphane is a powerful phytonutrient found in cruciferous vegetables, especially in broccoli sprouts. It has the ability to turn on “phase II detoxification enzymes” to get rid of toxins, protect against oxidation and lower inflammation. Most important, sulforaphane has been shown to destroy pathways that can lead to cancer tumor growth as well as cancer tumor stem cell growth. The best way to use sulforaphane to boost immunity as well as protect against cancer metastasis is through supplementation.

Other modalities that can help the immune system after chemotherapy include vitamin D/K, iodine, melatonin, modified citrus pectin, bee propolis, curcumin/black pepper, and many others.

Countering the Short Term Side Effects of Chemotherapy

Short-term effects like loss of hair and nausea usually take the forefront during course of treatment, and rightly so. There are natural modalities that you can employ, however, to help you through it. The following will also boost your immunity and help you over the long term as well.

Nausea and Diarrhea

L-Glutamine and probiotics can become your best friends if you are suffering from diarrhea as a result of chemotherapy. L-Glutamine has been shown to help protect and repair the cells of the digestive tract.

Re-establishing a healthy balance of microflora in the gut through probiotics will provide both short term and long term benefits for the gut and immune system. Probiotics can also help reverse diarrhea, as noted by Sloane Memorial Kettering Cancer Center.
To counter nausea quickly (and, in turn, help with weight loss and appetite), many people turn to cannabis. One study published in the British Medical Journal found that cannabis was more effective than most common pharmaceuticals for curbing both nausea and vomiting.

Fatigue
Some modalities that can be of help for overall fatigue include L-Carnitine (which can also help with sleep), vitamin C, astralagus, Turkey Tail mushroom (which is also cancer protective) and the herb Rodiola Rhosea. Also make sure you are adequately hydrated and have plenty of electrolytes in your system, as chemo will deplete them.

Mouth Sores
Manuka honey, cultivated in New Zealand from the Manuka bush, is a known anti-inflammatory and also has anti-microbial properties. A clinical trial conducted at Assiut University in Egypt discovered that this kind of honey prevented mouth sores in both chemotherapy and radiation therapy patients.

Brittle Hair and Nails
Beefing up on essential vitamins and minerals may bring hair back in a shorter amount of time. It can also help with brittle nails. Some to include are B vitamins as well as ionic calcium, magnesium and zinc. Horsetail, a plant that grows wild in many regions of the United States, can assist with reforming collagen bonds in the hair, nails and skin.

Chemo Brain
Two common brain-related side effects in patients who have undergone chemotherapy are foggy-brain and forgetfulness. CoQ10, vitamin C, Omega 3 fatty acids, and medicinal mushrooms such as Lion’s Mane are substances that can help. Light exercise and meditation can also bring cognition “back on line,” according to studies.

Of course, the above is just the tip of the iceberg. You can learn more about chemotherapy and what you can do to protect yourself from its adverse effects in the second edition of my book, Heal Breast Cancer Naturally: The 7 Essential Steps to Beating Breast Cancer.
The Decision Regarding Chemotherapy Is Yours—Make An Informed One!

Your doctor may be steadfast in the course of action he recommends. You may have friends and family who offer their well-intentioned advice. Ultimately however, the path to healing is yours and yours alone. This includes which modalities—conventional or natural, or a combination of both—you choose on your cancer journey.

If you chose chemotherapy, just remember that how you nurture your immune system now can make all the difference between a quality life or pain and suffering in the future.

New Study Confirms
Chemotherapy Encourages Spread Of Cancer
Written by Paul Anthony Taylor for Dr. Rath Health Foundation

New research carried out by an international team of scientists has further confirmed that chemotherapy encourages the spread of cancer. Published in the Nature Cell Biology journal, the study looks at two commonly used chemotherapy drugs, paclitaxel and doxorubicin, and examines how breast cancer cells respond to them. Confirming what other studies have reported for years now, the researchers found that use of this extremely toxic class of drugs can trigger the onset of new tumors in other parts of the body.

The study describes how use of the two chemotherapy drugs in breast cancer results in specific proteins being produced. These circulate in the blood and, upon reaching the lungs, cause the release of further proteins and immune cells that can facilitate the development of metastatic cancer cells. Through its continued sale and promotion of toxic chemotherapy drugs for cancer, the pharmaceutical industry is thus ensuring that, far from eradicating the disease, it continues to exist. Small wonder, therefore, that the size of the global oncology market is expected to reach an eye-watering $200 billion annually by the year 2022.

Poisoning cancer patients with mustard gas derivatives
The toxicity of chemotherapy drugs is hardly a modern phenomenon. The first ones were derived from mustard gas, a chemical warfare agent used in the First World War. Introduced as cancer treatments from the 1940s onwards, the search for medical applications of mustard compounds continued through to the 1970s. Illustrating how little progress has since been made in the conventional treatment of cancer, chemical derivatives of mustard gas are still being used on patients today.
As a result of this medical blind alley, the World Health Organization estimates that cancer is now responsible for 9.6 million deaths per year. Breast cancer and lung cancer are the most common forms of the disease, with each seeing over 2 million cases per year.

The total annual economic cost of cancer is equally startling, amounting to more than $1 trillion each year. Not only is there no sign of this decreasing, but with the price of some new so-called monoclonal antibodies or biosimilar molecules for cancer now reaching $700,000 per patient per year, the damage to national health services and economies is likely to increase still further in the coming years.

Clearly, therefore, with both the incidence of cancer and its economic costs continuing to rise, the pharmaceutical approach is not the answer to this deadly disease.

Drug-based medicine fueling the incidence of cancer

As if all this wasn’t bad enough, the fact is that chemotherapy drugs are not the only pharmaceutical chemicals that encourage cancer.

In the 9th edition of the United States National Institutes of Health Report on Carcinogens, almost half of the substances listed as causes of cancer are pharmaceutical drugs. Examples include the vast majority of drugs used in the treatment of cancer; around half of all antibiotics; more than half of drugs prescribed for depression and mental health disorders; almost all immunosuppressive drugs; as well as anti-ulcer drugs, anti-allergy drugs, and many other types of medications.

Seen in this light, the new study confirming the dangers of chemotherapy acts as a timely reminder of why we have to terminate the pharmaceutical ‘business with disease’. Not only does drug-based medicine fail to correct the micronutrient deficiencies that are the primary cause of chronic diseases, it is also self-perpetuating: the incidence of cancer – one of the biggest killers in industrialized countries – is being further fueled by the treatments patients are given to supposedly make them well again. The need for us to bring this immoral charade to an end is both urgent and growing.
Stay Hydrated Using Sea Salt
Written by Dr. Carolyn Dean

This is what we have been telling everyone about salt and minerals for a decade now. Please read below what world-renowned Dr. Carolyn Dean has to say about it:

Salt has been demonized by allopathic medicine as one of the causes of hypertension and heart disease. That may be true, to some extent for table salt, but not for sea salt.

It’s a sad misconception that table salt and sea salt are the same. Nothing could be further from the truth. Sea salt is replete with 72 different minerals and table salt is just plain sodium chloride. You could call sodium chloride a drug for the damage it does to the body.

Here is what one 81-year old customer recently wrote:

“A friend is into her 2nd year of recovery from a heart attack and congestive heart failure. Her cardio guy is making her follow the Mayo Clinic dietary guidelines of low sodium diet and reduction of fluid intake resulting in a fear of salt and water. She does not drink water unless she’s parched, mostly on the golf course, and only a sip here and there. In spite of all that her ankles are often swollen and she has chronic exhaustion and depression. She is only 62 years old. She is on a disability pension and is overweight. She was vibrant and healthy until her heard attack. I have been trying to encourage her to "mind your minerals", but because of your Himalayan salt and water intake regime, which is opposite to her cardio guy, she tunes me out. I am finding it difficult to watch her slowly, in ignorance, destroy the very life she wants so hard to cling to.”

The best solution for dehydration includes adequate water intake and sea salt.
Add 1/8-1/4 tsp of sea salt or Himalayan salt to each pint of water. Drink half your body weight in ounces of water through the day... stopping about 6pm so your bladder doesn’t wake you up.

The minerals help hold water inside cells where they are needed for proper body function.

Proper hydration, sea salt and well-absorbed minerals are the keys to efficient and effective cellular function. When you have the proper amount of minerals in the cell – the cell automatically pulls in water to create the perfect electrolyte balance and allows the cell to function efficiently.

Consider the importance of using sea salt in your drinking water and do your own experiment to see how you feel with this simple trace mineral approach. Then be sure and add ReMag and ReMyte for the dozen most important minerals that your body craves.

Can you relate to the story of our 81-yr old friend above? Have you had to watch friends or loved ones suffer the effects of not recognizing the importance of minerals?

~ Dr. Carolyn Dean
Epigenetics & Chronic Disease
Written by Dr. Alfredo Galvez

My friend, Dr. Alfredo Galvez, is one of the best geneticists in the world. His take on chronic disease (think cancer), drugs, and the epigenome is outlined in the short article below. Now you will understand why Bob has been preaching “epigenetics” for so long – verified by a geneticist.

Why nutrition and lifestyle have more impact than drugs against age-related chronic diseases.

The conventional wisdom in the biomedical research community and in pharmaceutical companies is that age-related chronic diseases are the result of DNA mutations in the genome that corrupt the functioning of protein-coding genes. However, the revolutionary science of epigenetics is now revealing that dysfunctions to the epigenetic switches regulating gene expression are the key biological drivers in aging and chronic disease formation, NOT genetic mutations.

Most pharmaceutical drugs are developed based on this flawed scientific premise that age-related chronic diseases are caused by genetic mutations. For example, cancer driver mutations, which is the foundation of the NIH-funded precision medicine drug development program, can only exist in dysfunctional epigenomes that allow cancer to develop and metastasize. This is the reason why finding a cure for cancer through precision medicine is a myth and a waste of taxpayer money unless the problem of dysfunctional epigenomes is also taken into account. Unfortunately, there are currently NO drugs available that can effectively and safely target dysregulated epigenetic switches to prevent and treat chronic diseases.

The medical establishment has long been relying on drugs and ignoring nutrition and lifestyle as integral to the health care of their patients. But ultimately, scientific truth has a way of revealing itself. Advances in epigenetics research are now providing scientific evidence and revealing mechanisms of action to explain WHY and HOW optimal nutrition and healthy lifestyle can target and regulate these epigenetic switches to promote health, prolong life and reverse chronic disease formation.

The lunasin peptide, as an evolutionary conserved seed component found in plant proteins, is the first nutritional ingredient identified to modulate epigenetic switches that control expression of genes involved in chronic disease formation.

Why is the Science of Nutrition Ignored in Medicine?

For years I have been asking people to pick up a copy of T. Colin Campbell’s book, “The China Study”, to learn the truth about what nutrition has to do with chronic illness, health, and healing. One of the largest studies of its kind, “The China Study” produced truth regarding the role of food in our wellness and sickness. Milk and meat were proven in this work to be two of the prime culprits in the demise of our health. His second book, “Whole,” was published in 2013. Please see the link below and invest just under 17 minutes in this very important “Ted talk” he did recently (in his 80’s and looking good) as he summarizes his proven findings over the years. This is worth the look, friends.

Beth Yehlenton Baker

"UPDATE" from Denny Denny— I am struggling to find the right words to describe what has happened. On Saturday I had another PET scan to see if things had stabilized or gotten worse. Monday a Nurse Practitioner called me. Pete answered the phone because I had a feeling it was someone calling from the hospital, and in that moment I wasn’t prepared to hear. The next thing I knew she is saying that she called to tell us the good news about my scan. Wait, did she just say GOOD NEWS? Then she says that my liver has gone from 10 active abnormal cell growths down to ONE. All of the active/tumor cells lymph nodes in my lungs, chest, neck, and arms: COMPLETELY RESOLVED. Most of the lymph nodes in my abdomen and pelvic area are almost completely gone. Only 2-3 remain and they are much less active or bright on the scale used to determine how dangerous they are. As far as my bones, the report says: Marked improvement in osseous burden. Numerous bone metastases have significantly decreased in rogue cell activity. Most of the bone lesions are now COMPLETELY INACTIVE. This, my friends, is a MIRACLE. I was not even able to process all of this until yesterday during my office visit appointment when I finally saw the before and after images side by side. Keep in mind that these scans are 3 1/2 months apart. Medically, this response does not make sense. Needless to say, my oncology team was astonished. Because I still could not quite believe what I was seeing. I asked if this type of response was normal. I have only been taking the oral pill since Oct 20th and for the first couple weeks I took a half dose. She said, "No, this is not normal. This is exceptional!" Pete and I could barely comprehend the images side by side. We were speechless and all I could think to say for a moment was "Thank you so much." My oncologist looked at me and said, "Oh no, this is all you. If you had done what I suggested we would not be looking at these results right now. Chemical application would not have done this." I have great respect for her saying these words. We were more amazed because she had previously told me that oral pills always take longer to work than IV treatments and that is partly why she was pushing chemotherapeutic poison since my situation was so critical. Then I told her that I didn't know what her beliefs were but that I believe that this is also the result of hundreds of people praying hard for me since October. She said, "Well, even if I didn't believe it would be pretty hard to deny these results! But I am a believer!" I have no doubt that God has worked all of this out and He has heard our prayers and our cries. There is literally no other explanation for what we have seen. The proof is in those side by side images. When you look at them, it is normal for the brain, kidneys, and bladder to light up (black). So if you remove those areas from the image on the right almost nothing remains from what the left image showed in October. It is truly one of the most amazing things I have ever seen. I am so glad that I never saw the previous scan. I knew it was bad, but I never could have imagined just how bad. It would have been very difficult to remain hopeful and not be entirely depressed if any of us had seen that image. Now I understand why the oncologist kept saying that my physical appearance, lab results, and ability to walk around without severe pain or assistance did not match what it showed on the inside. ALL GOD. Now I understand why there were many days I could barely walk from one room to the other without complete exhaustion and why I could not breathe. Pete said to me yesterday, "Honey, you were dying." And I was. Thank you, Jesus, for preserving my life and giving me more time with my family. It is the greatest gift. I feel GREAT. I have gained 15 pounds! My thoughts are all over the place and honestly everything is still amazing. These results are more than I could have imagined. The faith and prayers of our family and friends have carried me through even when my own could not. I was trying to figure out how to prepare myself to die. I had faith, and my hope is in God, but I also knew the reality of my situation and that God would have to save my life. So while I do still have a few spots that remain, there is 90% improvement and I know that He will see us through. I know that there are people and churches as far away as Africa who have been fasting and praying for me and my family. There is no way I could ever express my gratitude to you all fully in words. You have been faithful and have fought this battle right by my side and I pray that you all receive immense blessings. It was seriously the best thing ever to be able to call my parents and give them GOOD NEWS. Such a gift. We are amazed and will continue to be grateful for every single day that I am given. Please continue to pray with us as I continue to fight until every spot is eradicated from my body! I posted a more close up image below so you can better see how absolutely miraculous this truly is. It's simply stunning. Thank you Beth Yehlenton Baker for introducing REDox to us!

Jane Zeeher it's technically not a chemo pill. It is a parp enzyme inhibitor. I've also heavily used essential oils (celery seed, myrrh, clove, rosemary, DDR prime, OnGuard, and Rose) cannabis tinctures (cbd, cbda, cbg, and thc), 12oz Asea first thing upon waking then 12 more oz later in the afternoon/evening, tons of garlic extract, lots of celery juice with green apple and lemon added, Berberine, Quercetin, ASEA biome and omega, natural estrogen metabolizers (DIM and myoim), mushroom extract/powder, coffee enemas 2x a week w/ tangerine, sandalwood, and copaiba essential oil added, infrared sauna, exercise, and clean eating. I did all this consistently since October.
I am struggling to find the right words to describe what has happened. On Saturday I had another PET scan to see if things had stabilized or gotten worse. Monday a Nurse Practitioner called me. Pete answered the phone because I had a feeling it was someone calling from the hospital and in that moment I wasn’t prepared to hear. The next thing I know she is saying that she called to tell us the good news about my scan. Wait, did she just say GOOD NEWS? Then she says that my liver has gone from 10 active tumors down to ONE. All of the active/cancerous lymph nodes in my lungs, chest, neck, and arms: ALL COMPLETELY RESOLVED. Most of the lymph nodes in my abdomen and pelvic area are almost completely gone. Only 2-3 remain and they are much less active or bright on the scale used to determine how cancerous they are. As far as my bones, the report says: Marked improvement in osseous disease burden.

Numerous bone metastases have significantly decreased in cancer activity. Most of the bone lesions are now COMPLETELY INACTIVE. This, my friends, is a MIRACLE. I was not even able to process all of this until yesterday during my office visit appointment when I finally saw the before and after scans side by side. Keep in mind that these scans are 3 1/2 months apart. Medically, this response does not make sense. Needless to say, my oncology team was astounded. Because I still could not quite believe what I was seeing I asked if this type of response was normal. I have only been taking the oral pill since Oct 20th and for the first couple weeks I took a half dose. She said, “No, this is not normal. This is exceptional!” Pete and I could barely comprehend the images side by side. We were speechless and all I could think to say for a moment was “Thank you so much.” My oncologist looked at me and said, “Oh no, this is all you. If you had done what I suggested we would not be looking at these results right now. Chemo would not have done this.” I have great respect for her saying those words. We were more amazed because she had previously told me that oral pills always take longer to work than IV treatments and that is partly why she was pushing chemo since my situation was so critical. Then I told her that I didn’t know what her beliefs were but that I believe that this is also the result of hundreds of people praying hard for me since October. She said, “Well, even if I didn’t believe it would be pretty hard to deny with these results! But I am a believer!” I have no doubt that God has worked all of this out and He has heard our prayers and our cries. There is literally no other explanation for what we have seen. The proof is in those side by side images. When you look at them, it is normal for the brain, kidneys, and bladder to light up (black). Migraine Headaches Testimonial

LifeWaveX39™ Stem Cell Patch

I've suffered from migraine headaches since age 35. (I just turned 71.) I used to take a prescribed medication for migraines 4-5 times a week to keep me from launching into a terrible headache.

When my friend, Susan Rock, told me about her results after getting a sample of X39®, I told her I'll sign up and get a month's supply to see if it helps with my migraines.

And help it DID! I have not had to take any of the migraine medication since I started on the X39® patches. Totally elated is an understatement! I have had absolutely no sign of a headache for nearly 30 days. I feel more energetic and definitely more focused. This is an answer to a prayer.

A financial service for using life insurance today™

For millions of people who are living with a serious illness such as cancer, heart disease, Alzheimer’s or AIDS, the high cost of medical care can quickly deplete essential resources. The same is true for many people over the age of 75 who have complicating health factors. Just putting money aside for basic expenses such as groceries and mortgage payments can be a challenge. LIBI gives people a place to turn for additional resources. Through a financial service called a viatical settlement, we enable people to sell their current life insurance policies for a percentage of the total face value. The money people receive may be used for any purpose and, in most cases, is free of federal income tax obligations.

LIBI can help open the door to new possibilities—such as fewer financial worries, new options for medical care and additional resources to share with family and friends.

All of us have our own sense of what’s important, whether it’s reaching a long-held goal, spending time with family and friends or enjoying the simple pleasures of each day.

What sets Life Insurance Buyers, Inc. apart

People place their trust and confidence in LIBI for many reasons—the financial strength and stability of our company, the experience and commitment of our people, the range and quality of our services, and the leadership and integrity of our organization. These are the qualities that set LIBI apart as the industry’s top broker. LIBI has helped convert millions in policies into accessible funds for hundreds of individuals in need. In every relationship, we take the time to learn what’s most important to our clients and to provide them with the resources they need, in a timely and confidential manner.
