

The Wright Stuff

A Word from Bob Wright

Recently, I was the featured speaker at a large organic dinner event in Branson, Missouri, put on by none other than the Organic Guru herself, Lynnette Pate, and her Fuel for the Body organization. We had an absolutely wonderful time and were treated to some excellent food.

My friend Webster Kehr, better known as the Cancer Tutor, was sitting next to me at one of the many individual dinner tables at the White House Theater. As I got up to walk to the podium to speak, Webster made a comment that hit me right between the eyes. It was something that I knew to be true, but something that I had “talked around” for many years now. He said, and I’m paraphrasing, “Bob, no recently diagnosed cancer patient should ever die of cancer again. We now know so much, we have the solutions, and we know what heals the human body.” I was momentarily stunned but knew, at that instant, that I should lead with that as I talked to this large group of people.

Mounting Evidence

Camelot Raided!

Friends, Webster is spot on. But, we must educate people to do the right things after diagnosis. Unfortunately, most do not and end up in that terminal cycle of chemotherapy and radiation treatment. Sadly, it is a real “dead end.” And, although all of us know someone who has survived those protocols, facts show us that most do not because cancer cannot be cured or eradicated by poisoning and irradiating the body. In fact, the ones that do survive do so “in spite” of those treatments, not “because” of them. They change their lives and start eating real food, oxygenating their cells, alkalizing their bodies and detoxifying the poisons and heavy metals that accumulate daily in all of us.

Webster has a group of protocols that he recommends and overwhelming evidence proves that they work. His website is probably one of the most inclusive “anti-cancer” sites on the Internet. He has been at it a long time and has also invested much of his time in the Independent Cancer Research Foundation – constantly looking for new ways to assist cancer patients and also providing solutions for other sickness and disease. If you haven’t been there already, go to his site at www.cancertutor.com. It’s a must see.

At the American Anti-Cancer Institute, we know beyond any logical measurement that we have the real solutions to cancer. Frequently, people will tell me that they have this “rare” type of cancer and, because this diagnosis is not typical, ask what they should do outside of the proven protocols (natural – not chemical). Their oncologist has given them a title for this special cancer that they cannot pronounce and has threatened them that if they don’t have surgery and start the chemo right away – they have only a few months to live. We hear it all the time and, almost always, it is not true.

No, the actuality of these caustic treatments really helping them is probably less than 3%. I don’t like those odds, and neither should you. The chance that a natural protocol, undertaken immediately after diagnosis, will benefit the patient is better than 90%. Do I have a clinical study to prove that? Absolutely not. Nor will there ever be one. Knowing what we know, how could we possibly do a double blind, placebo controlled clinical trial – giving one group something that would not help them? It’s not going to happen. As a result, the above percentage is derived from what we see with the patients we work with and what we hear about from all those who do similar things. Remember what Webster said, there is no reason for a recently diagnosed cancer patient to die of cancer anymore.

If you have cancer, grab hold of that last line and hang on. It is your true hope in a world where allopathic medicine has gone mad. ♦

“ALTERNATIVE VS. CONVENTIONAL”

I always find it amazing when people refer to what we do as “alternative therapies” or “alternative medicine.” Now, I want you to think about that for a moment.

When did it become “alternative” to put in your body or treat sickness and disease with organic foods, pure water, whole food supplementation, true vitamins and minerals, etc., etc.?

On the other hand, what is conventional about filling the body with poisons (chemotherapy), radiation, and drugs to heal cancer? Aren't we taught as little children to stay away from poisons? We certainly wouldn't go intentionally into a radioactive waste site. We wouldn't allow doctors to do surgery on us just to see if any thing was wrong inside our bodies.

Yet, we walk without reservation into oncology treatment centers, have our pic lines inserted, then proceed to undergo round after round of immune system busting chemical agents that take us to the brink of death before we are pulled back again. Our hair falls out, our brains, hearts, and livers are damaged (many times beyond repair), our bowels are stopped up, and we walk around in a fog that doesn't seem to go away. If that is not true “alternative” therapy, I don't know what is.

Friends, at the AACI we are beginning a campaign to “out” allopathic cancer treatment for what it most certainly is – “alternative treatment.” And, we will begin to refer to natural cancer care (the care that really works) as the true “conventional treatment” that it, without question, assuredly is. Let's stop the nonsense and call a spade a spade. Please, get on the bandwagon and support this effort to tell all people the truth about cancer care in America today (and around the world).

We believe that prevention is the real cure. It is simply not arguable. What prevents – heals, and what heals – prevents. It has always been true and always will be. Unfortunately, to mainstream medicine prevention means prophylactically removing the perfectly healthy breasts of a young woman because she carries a mutated or damaged BRCA 1 or BRCA2 gene. This is a gene that will probably never be expressed if she lives a healthy and responsible life. How did we get to this place? What has gone so wrong in our society that a doctor would even consider recommending this to women? Do we simply cut first and ask questions later? Medicate, radiate, and chemo the patient; and if that doesn't work, we'll try something else? What on earth has become of us? Had enough of these questions? Me too.

From now on, let's refer to natural medicine, natural therapies, treatments, and protocols as the real “conventional medicine.” Let's reclaim what is rightfully and patently true. And, let's start right now. ♦

Vitamin K: Nature's Blood Regulator

Vitamin K is a fat soluble vitamin, vital in the synthesis of several proteins that mediate both blood coagulation and blood anticoagulation.

We typically hear about Vitamin K as a necessary shot for newborns immediately after birth, but most people are completely unaware why. The Vitamin K shot given to newborns is said to reduce the likelihood of brain hemorrhage shortly after birth, as many children born today lack sufficient amounts of the vitamin in their blood. While the deficiency is due to the mother's low vitamin K level, this lack of proper nutrients during pregnancy is easily remedied through proper consumption of vegetables consistently throughout the pregnancy.

Vitamin K is also vital to the health of anyone living with a clotting disorder, and for individuals taking Vitamin D3 regularly, as Vitamin D3 hardens the arteries without sufficient Vitamin K. While scientists have yet to classify how much vitamin K one should consume, an estimate is 120mcg daily for adult men, 90mcg for adult women, and 10-20mcg for children.

The best form of Vitamin K2 is MK-7 menaquinone-4, found in fermented products such as tempeh and natto. The healthiest form of K1 is found in raw, organic, fermented sauerkraut and cucumbers. K2 is also found with Vitamin D3 in raw, grass fed cow and goat cheeses. The best sources of Vitamin K are organic, green, leafy vegetables, non-GMO soybeans, and organic alfalfa sprouts, kale, Swiss chard, parsley, and Brussels sprouts. One cup of kale contains up to 15 times the recommended daily value.

If you or a loved one is planning to conceive, is living with a blood clotting disorder, or taking a daily Vitamin D3 supplement, please be aware of the healthiest way to implement Vitamin K into daily life.

Not only does Vitamin K reduce osteoporosis, it is an important component in replenishing good gut bacteria after antibiotic use, and for those dealing with intestinal disorders, such as Celiac Disease, Crohn's Disease, and diverticulitis. ♦

“Mounting Evidence”

In the past two issues of this newsletter, I introduced what I believe to be the true missing link to cancer healing (healing the immune system) called PIOH. This is short for Precision Intestinal Oxidative Hydrotoning. I believe it to be a true miracle for those suffering from any malady – especially cancer.

You’ve heard me say that “the proof is in the pudding.” Actually, if you’ve read my book you know that I got that from my Great Hakawi Grandmother. Once again, this adage has proven to be true. While no one thing – or even a combination of things – can be said to cure cancer, the human immune system will if you give it half a chance. That’s exactly what PIOH, the right kind of water, and supplements that literally overwhelm the body with nutrition will do. And the stories and testimonies are beginning to stack up.

About three and a half weeks ago I visited a young man (27 years old) and his family who had called and almost begged me to come out and help him. When I got there on a Sunday afternoon, he was curled up in the fetal position on the living room floor with a blanket around him. He was very sick. His diagnosis was adenocarcinoma and he had already undergone many chemo treatments. In fact, in desperation, the doctors had opened up his body cavity and actually “poured” the chemo in. Of course, it made no difference – just made him sicker.

He was taking the oral chemotherapy, 5-FU, when I came to visit. He managed to get to the table and listen for about 10 minutes until he had to head for the bathroom and throw up. His young wife, cradling their 13 day old baby, continued to converse with me as did Mom and Dad. He returned a while later but just curled up on the couch and slept. The family was willing to try something different as nothing was working and he was just getting sicker. Sincerely, he looked to me like he was on his way out.

We added a protocol of supplements, foods, the right kind of ionized water, and PIOH treatments in order to help boost the immune system in an attempt to restore the ability to destroy the cancer. He did not look (at that time) even well enough to travel anywhere. The family had to cancel a flight to see another doctor as he was unable to fly. It did not seem that he would be strong enough to undergo any treatments.

He decided to fight for his life. He started the food, water, and supplement protocols immediately. They helped. I worked with them via email for a couple of weeks before I went on the road for speaking engagements. Upon returning, I went to our PIOH specialist to have a treatment myself. Guess who was coming out as I went in? You guessed it. I simply could not believe my eyes. The young man who had appeared to be dying a mere 3-4 weeks previously, had just finished his fifth PIOH treatment. He grabbed my hand and nearly ripped it off as he shook it. He was full of life and looking forward to a long one. He felt great and his body is on its way to healing.

No one can say for sure what the future will hold. He has been so drugged and medicated, so cut-up – that it seemed like his chances would be very slim for recovery. I must exclaim, however, that he looked amazingly great when I last saw him and he was continuing with his program.

This is what can happen when you do the right thing for the immune system, stay the course, and take it seriously. People heal every day when they give the body what it needs to survive and thrive. We know what that is – now, so does this young man.

If you are interested in these PIOH treatments (and you should be), please email us at info@americanaci.org and we will put you in touch with our specialist. It may well be the best decision you have ever made. ♦

RAIDED!

Those of you who have been subscribers to our newsletter know that we wrote about Camelot Cancer Care in the March issue. Camelot is owned and run by Maureen Long, a woman on a mission with a compassionate heart to help cancer patients.

Maureen built her clinic on the tenets that surround efficacious cancer treatment and has brought many struggling and suffering patients back to health. You have read a few of these testimonies in my book, "Killing Cancer – Not People." These stories of recovery would seem to be true miracles – except for one thing. They happen continuously at Camelot and in other natural clinics and institutes that practice what really works for cancer patients.

Like Doctors Jonathan Wright and James Forsythe before her, Maureen's life-saving clinic was raided and shut down by the FDA and the FBI at 11:00 a.m., Tuesday, April 23rd. Of course, Dr. Wright and Dr. Forsythe were both vindicated – we shall hope the same for Ms. Long.

According to the attached news story, the government agents were looking for laetrile – stating that it was an unapproved drug that showed no promise in helping cancer patients and could, in fact, give them cyanide poisoning.

What a crock. The evidence for laetrile goes back over 40 years when it was proven to heal cancer patients. As a matter of fact, if all the proof were printed out and stacked up – I'm sure it would reach from floor to ceiling. On the other hand, there has never been any evidence that this substance harms anyone.

The problem lies in its efficacy against cancer. It is so effective – that it has become a direct competitor to allopathic medicine and would be the treatment of choice for almost all people with cancer – if they actually had a choice in the matter. We live in what is said to be the freest society in the world – yet we have no health freedom when it comes to selecting our treatment of choice. Maybe we are not so free after all.

Jason Vale healed his cancer by eating apricot kernels (the prime source of amygdalin, a.k.a., laetrile). He was so excited – after going through modern medical treatments that did not help him – to discover the apricot source, and to subsequently heal himself by eating loads of these seeds. Don't take my word for it, ask him. As a matter of fact, he was so enamored with his new treatment that he simply had to tell the world about it. He started marketing these kernels and advertised (rightfully so) that they had cured his cancer. When the FDA got wind of it they told him to stop. He responded that he couldn't because he had to get the word out about this miracle cancer cure. When he did not stop, the government shut him down, arrested him, tried and convicted him, and tossed him in prison for five years. FIVE YEARS!! For selling apricot kernels! A natural food! I've seen rapists and drug dealers get less time.

The fact is that laetrile is not a drug at all. It is a natural occurring substance found in most seeds – particularly within the pit of the apricot (the seed inside the pit). It looks like an almond. If you have eaten these – or strawberries, raspberries, blackberries, apple seeds, etc., you have eaten the raw form of laetrile, called amygdalin, or vitamin B17. When the amygdalin is turned into a liquid, it is called laetrile.

Now, let's get to the cyanide issue. While it is true that apricot kernels contain “locked” cyanide molecules, your body contains an enzyme called rhodanase that neutralizes this molecule. Cancer cells do not have this enzyme – thus, they are “whacked” by the cyanide. In order to make a point, I ate 25 of these kernels in about 5 minutes and never had a single negative side effect. The Hunzakut people of the Hindu Kush and Himalayan regions of Northern Pakistan routinely live to be over 100 years old. Their diets are rich in apricot kernels and “glacier milk,” naturally ionized water.

For the whole story of laetrile (and you should read this), acquire a copy of the book “World Without Cancer” by my friend G. Edward Griffin. Now in about its 16th printing, this book was originally published in 1974 and is the story of vitamin B-17 (amygdalin/laetrile). The facts in this book have stood the test of time – the facts our own government does not want us to know.

Jason Vale – five years in prison for selling apricot kernels. Now, Maureen Long and Camelot Cancer Care. This persecution and prosecution of our true healers must end. Write your congressman/woman or representative. We have to come together regarding health freedom before all of our options are finally taken away. Unless we band together, this is indeed where we are headed.

Our best to Maureen, Michael, and the entire staff at Camelot. Cancer patients have lost one of their best friends – and a real chance to heal. Let's hope and pray it is not permanent. ♦
